ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An information processing apparatus which is used for an exposure system has a generation unit which generates format information required to inform a user with respect to a control parameter used in the exposure system, based on the control parameter, and an output unit which outputs the parameter information and the format information out of the apparatus.